SUBCULT

Tools, media, and infrastructure for the counterculture.

subcult.tv | August 2026

WHAT WE DO

SUBCULT builds developer tools, self-hosted software, media pipelines, and community software. The public catalog links to repositories and records whether each project is active or incubating.

PROBLEM

- Hosted tools can collect workflow data and tie core work to vendor accounts
- Hosted infrastructure can make migration and independent operation difficult
- Public software requires ongoing engineering, documentation, and hosting

SOLUTION

+ Public repositories and self-hosted options where each project supports them
+ Patreon support funds public work without private access or roadmap control
+ Current project states and planned work are published on subcult.tv
